Meter miracle

City offers holiday parking incentives

This holiday season, Boston will once again offer parking incentives to entice local drivers to hit the shops.

Boston motorists will be offered two hours of free parking at the city's 9,000 metered spaces, the opportunity to participate in the popular Toys for Tickets program and a 20 percent discount on a Boston Meter Card, according to Mayor Thomas Menino's Office. Two free hours of meter parking starts Friday and runs every Saturday in December. METRO

Thankless Thursday? Black Friday workers up all night

Holiday shopping. Black Friday sales crept into Thanksgiving, and some traditionalists were not happy.

A backlash on social media unfolded this month as the retailers made it clear that Black Friday would seep into Thanksgiving and the first day of Hanukkah Thursday.

Although Massachusetts state law prevented big retailers from opening before midnight Friday, many residents were still bewildered at the night-owl hours and the strain it could put on employees who were pulled away from their homes late Thursday night.

In Massachusetts, Kmart kicked off sales right at the stroke of midnight, while Sears waited until 12:30 a.m. Walmart held off until 1 a.m., as did Best Buy and Target.

"It's just a sign of disrespect for workers," said Russ Davis, executive director of Massachusetts Jobs With Justice. "[Employees] can't even have a day off to enjoy with their families. They have to go in [before midnight] and start stocking shelves."

Target in Braintree's South Shore Plaza was filled with shoppers looking for Black Friday deals. / GETTY IMAGES

According to Barbara Bickart, associate professor of marketing at Boston University, the early Black Friday openings were brought on by retailers' interest in staying one step ahead of the holiday shopping game.

"It's definitely because of competitive pressure. People are going to be spending more this year on holiday gifts than they have in the past. The retailers feel like they have to be open first, and be the most accessible," said Bickart.

Opposition was strong on social media sites like Twitter and Facebook, where users pleaded with would-be shoppers to stay home Thursday, particularly in parts of the country that allowed retailers to open early in the day.

On Twitter

- How to really combat stores being open on Thanksgiving? Punch any friends of yours who are shopping that day in the pee parts. @CHRISBROGAN
- It should be illegal to open ... anytime before midnight on Thanksgiving @CARLAMPENA
- I understand that stores have to be competitive to draw people to them, but starting Black FRIDAY shopping on Thanksgiving is a bit much @CTURVV2014
- It kind of upsets me that stores are having sales on thanksgiving. But if theres one thing that trumps tradition in America, it's capitalism @KRISTENMARB
- No one even appreciates the meaning of thanksgiving anymore, now it's all about what time the stores are opening #sadtweet @ALLHAILQUEENH

Time is running out to save on solar

Boston residents have until Saturday to sign up for discounted solar panels through a city program. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

The sun is setting on a chance for Boston residents to participate in a program to solarize their homes and receive a free solar assessment and discounted rates.

The city and office of Mayor Thomas Menino is urging residents to sign up to solarize their homes before Saturday.

Through a partnership between Next Step Living and the city called Renew Boston Solarize, residents who sign a contract for solar qualify for bulk pricing that drops as more people solarize.

Quoted

"My team is dedicated to reaching even more residents to see if going solar is right for them."
Thomas Menino

As of this month, there are 400 residential solar installations in Boston.

"Through the Renew Boston Solarize program, residents can lock in lower energy costs, create new clean energy jobs right here in Boston and help us continue to 'greenovate' our city," Menino said in a statement.

Menino has set a goal of reducing greenhouse gas emissions by 25 percent by 2020.

Tony's Metro Magic gives you an opportunity to bring a child joy

Just scroll and click.
Select a toy from our online wish list and it's sent right to Metro for distribution to a local child in need.

Janiya DuBose of Boston, who was 2 when she opened her Metro Magic toy last year, was thrilled with her selection. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

If you haven't already purchased a gift for Tony's Metro Magic toy drive, there are hundreds of reasons at Heading Home why you should.

Based in Charlestown, Heading Home provides emergency, transitional and permanent housing, as well as support services, to hundreds of low-income homeless and formerly homeless families and individuals throughout Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Malden, Everett and Quincy.

According to Heading Home, a typical homeless family consists of a single mother in her 20s with one to three children, and the majority of the organization's family program participants are young single mothers.

It's these families who need your help this holiday season.

Heading Home, along with Toys for Tots, has partnered with Metro again this year to help homeless children who will not have a gift to open over the holidays.

Tony's Metro Magic — named after beloved former Editor-in-Chief Tony Metcalf who passed away this year — allows readers to select a gift from our online wish list and have it directly shipped to Metro and then distributed to local children at Heading Home or Toys for Tots.

Tom Lorello, executive director of Heading Home, said the generosity of Metro's readers continues to bring countless smiles to the families they serve that are struggling.

"The Metro Magic toy drive grants wishes and provides all family members with a real boost during an already tough time — children receive their favorite toys and parents receive necessities like mittens and housewares," Lorello said. "Words cannot describe the joy on our clients' faces as they receive their gifts."

The joy that Heading Home's clients feel is something that every adult can relate to — we, too, experienced it when we received that shiny new bike or dainty doll house as a child.

Now it's your turn to deliver that joy. We are regularly updating our wish list, available by clicking on the Tony's Metro Magic logo at Metro.us. METRO

What to give

Metro is collecting new, unwrapped gifts.

- Things like action figures, dolls, board games and sports toys, like a football, are always good.
- And don't forget about older children, ages 11 and up. Older children would love to receive an MP3 player, a makeup kit or a poster from their favorite movie this year.
- Spending $10 on a toy for a child can make a difference.

How to take part

Tony's METRO MAGIC

1 Look for the Tony's Metro Magic logo on our website, Metro.us.

2 One click on the logo will take you to a "Wish List" we have set up via a secure link on ToysRUs.com.

3 Once there, you can see all the toys we've already requested for kids, and more are being added daily. Simply select the toys you want and purchase them. That's it! Selecting only the toys on our Wish List ensures that all the gifts will be shipped to our offices.

Let us know!

If you donate, email us at charity@metro.us letting us know what you gave and we'll shout out a "thank you" in the paper.

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the 15th installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 19: Temp hits an all-time low

See more at www.metro.us

Do you have a special place you go to when you're at an all-time low? Some people have a place. I just drive and drive, past the strip malls, past the light industrial zones and past the fallow fields.

After watching Kyle enter the refinery, I began thinking of the world and how it's changed, even in my short life. Countries like Greece that used to be normal countries, now gutted of their middle class and overnight turned into something new and nameless, a land with no economy but with pretty good coffee and smoking hot Wi-Fi. I got to thinking of bubbles — how all we do these days is lurch from bubble to bubble. Are we in a new bubble? Is the bubble about to burst? I'm afraid of bubbles and I'm sick of bubbles — and yet I'm addicted to bubbles. Go figure.

I drove past the under-construction subdivisions that died in 2008, their 2x4s turned the gray color of moths. I wondered if we're addicted to the idea that society without a middle class isn't really society. I wondered if maybe back in the days of Detroit, jumbo refrigerators and the Beatles we tricked ourselves into thinking that the middle class equals the future — and without a middle class we can't see pictures in our heads of what tomorrow might be. I find it strange how politicians repeat the words "middle class" over and over and over again, as if doing so will allow us to pretend it still exists, that it's not evaporating daily like a puddle on a road.

Night came and I was anywhere and nowhere when my phone buzzed. It was Mr. Xu — he was back in town! And he had his big surprise all ready for me at his short-term corporate lodging suite.

I couldn't remember the last time I was ever happier to get a text.

I drove to The Executive Privilege Short-Term Corporate Lodging and ran to Room 307, where the nerdy but lovely Mr. Xu awaited me.

"Ah, hello, capitalist lapdog. You be ready for grand surprise?"

"Shut up! I can't believe you're back!" I gave him a smooch and said, "OK, dial me in. I am ready for your big surprise, buster."

"Apologize in advance if not good enough."

"Show me your surprise!"

"Very well."

A drop cloth concealed what was supposed to be the main living area. Mr. Xu pulled it back and I bathed in the majesty of what I saw.

He said, "Pretty kickass-sexy, don't you think?"

I sucked in some breath and said, "Mr. Xu, you have truly amazed me."

Before me, in beautiful rows and shelves, lay over a thousand unique pairs of sneakers that would crash eBay in a flash if they all went up for sale at once.

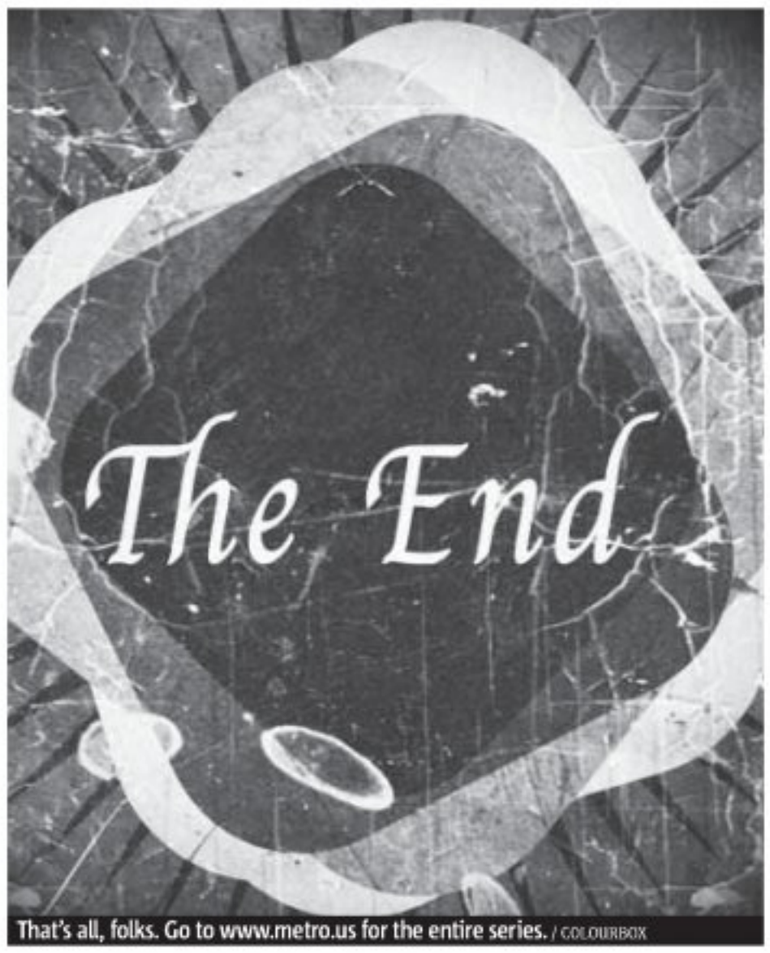
Day 20: Temp figures it all out



That's all, folks. Go to www.metro.us for the entire series. / COLOURBOX

If you came here expecting a happy ending, that's exactly what you're going to get. It's a few months later, I'm now Mrs. Xu, there are twin Xus in the offing and the twins will be in line to inherit more than $1 billion.

I remind myself of this every time I think of the coffee room's Girl Guide chocolate bar honor box, and how horrified I always was to find out staffers had shortchanged it, and how I paid out the difference from my own pocket.

What about TWK? Don't worry about the old gang — they're doing just fine. The building is now home to Mr. Xu's vanity project (and mine) which is to be the world's largest online retailer of vintage and high-end sneakers.

Sarah No.1 is once again in charge of online marketing development, and Sarah No. 2 is back developing e-commerce strategy. This time, their decisions will have a chance of being implemented and making some kind of difference.

With a slight romantic twist, Sarah No. 3, whom I never really got to know, is seeing Kyle, who quit the refinery after a week spent inhaling its magic aromas. Kyle is now getting a full sleeve of ink on each arm and is in charge of "Branding Atmosphere" which means — I'll be honest — I have no idea what, but I'm just so glad he's no longer inhaling oil. I'll always have a soft spot for that lovable lunkhead who kind of flirted with me, and whom I kind of flirted with back when we were both younger and dumber.

The Danimal we now call "The Shaker" because we send him out doing anything that involves old-school middle management: people shaking each other's hands, conferences and land leasing and that kind of stuff. It's a remarkably effective category and he loves it.

Dan and Chantelle split up quite amicably. Chantelle and Darren are engaged and living in the gated community together. Chantelle's lips have shrunk and she looks a tiny bit more human and promises not to get more work done.

And the happiest ending of all is for Kurt, the old guy by the stoplight, who now has his own office out by the delivery bay where his main task is to sit, enjoy life and maybe watch the Carpenters on VHS — he refuses to go online.

So maybe you entered this story expecting there to be a bogeyman — someone whom we can yell at, and whack with sticks like a piñata. But there is no bogeyman here. There's only the times we live in, and we can bitch about them or we can move forward, and if you don't move forward, well, you'll be left behind, left in the past, which makes no sense — because the present is all we have.

And really, how does Kate Winslet manage to always drop those pounds?

There's no lack of media coverage on Israel, the Middle East's sole democracy with civil rights and a free press. What is lacking is objective coverage. This tiny Jewish nation, the size of New Jersey, with less than eight million people, a quarter of them non-Jewish, generally receives inaccurate, harsh, even hostile coverage from the world's press.
The Jewish News Service (JNS.org) was created to correct that. Our weekly reporting, including exclusive distribution rights for Israel Hayom, Israel's most popular daily, now appears in 31 Jewish weeklies. By the numbers

Gaga's "Born This Way" debuted in the top spot in 2011, selling 1.1 million copies in its opening week, helped by a 99-cent promotion on Amazon. The top debut week for 2013 so far is Justin Timberlake's "The 20/20 Experience," which sold 968,000 copies in its opening week in March.
REUTERS

Lady Gaga's "ARTPOP" shot to the No. 1 slot on the Billboard charts upon its release earlier this month, but the buzz surrounding the third full-length album from Mother Monster was that it didn't bring in the numbers that music industry insiders were hoping for. To be fair, the fact that Gaga's "Born This Way" sold 1.1 million copies in its first week made it a tough act to follow. Selling 258,000 copies in its first week, as "ARTPOP" did, is not too shabby for album sales in 2013.

Reviews have been a bit harsh for "ARTPOP."
The reviews do not bother me, but the rumors or gossip do. Fame provokes a negative energy that causes instability in me. But I am a woman facing something new every day and, despite constant attacks on me, there is always something good, like my little monsters, who are always there.

Even if this album weren't titled as such, it's obvious that art, pop and culture influences you greatly.
And they blend together. It's like saying that you and me can be together, or me and my fans — we can all be together in one space and live despite differences or colors. Pop and art are not in conflict with culture; they are part of each other. So the intention of the album was to put art culture in pop music, a throwback to Andy Warhol.

Give us three words to describe what's behind your concept of "ARTPOP."
Hate, love and sensuality.

GABRIELA ACOSTA SILVA
letters@metro.us

Q&A

The makeovers — are they a disguise? Some type of shield?
Yes, I have many costumes. [Laughs] That is Lady Gaga. I'm always on the defensive in my professional side. I always wear different clothes and change my outfit to feel stronger. Depending on the day, I am the person I am. If one day I feel weak, I will change my hair three times and I will feel like a superwoman. It doesn't matter the color of the hair — it's what makes me feel like a strong woman.

He actually enjoys doing comedy

Interview. In person, Jason Statham is quite a good deal less terrifying than he is on-screen.

"Homefront" was supposed to star its writer, Sylvester Stallone. "Sly had written it in '08, so it had been beautifully gathering dust," explains Jason Statham. The two were working on "The Expendables 2" when Stallone revealed he was too busy to make it. Statham nicked it from him, and now he's the one who plays an ex-DEA agent who's moved to a small town, only to piss off the wrong locals.

"If you look at all the great things he's written — 'Cliffhanger,' all the 'Rocky's, all the 'Rambo's — he's a writer by trade," Statham says. "You just think, 'How do you have the time, to be the big movie star, the writer and the director? And be a dad. And go to the gym every day. It's inhumanly possible."

Statham is no slacker himself, routinely popping up in action fare. But even ignoring his age (46), it's important for him to branch out. His last film, "Redemption," was even mostly a drama, with him as an ex-soldier plagued with PTSD.

"It's hard for me to be satiated with the dramatic aspect of action movies sometimes," he confesses. "Stallone told me, 'We never see you play a vulnerable chap. We never see you smile and be nice towards a little girl. You're always seen as this cold-blooded killer.'"

In person, Statham is closer to his characters in Guy Ritchie's "Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels" (his film debut) and "The Italian Job" — a boisterous joker with a great laugh that's deployed frequently.

"I'm not a traditional actor. I'm not a guy who came from drama school. I'm not going to play the complicated lawyer," he says. "I'm a worker. I like to work. I enjoy what I do. And sometimes what's in front of you isn't exactly the greatest thing in the world, but I always have something inside me going, 'This would be fantastic.' Otherwise I wouldn't' do it."

On Franco

One 'busy bee'

"Homefront" also pairs him with another prolific freak: James Franco, who plays a small-town meth king who decides to make Statham's character's life hell — and ensures that come the end there will not be a fair fight. "He's an interesting chap," Statham says. "We had to release him every Friday so he could teach at some college. It was Monday through Thursday, then he has to get on a plane so he can teach a class, then come back and buy some more paint to do his artwork. He's quite the busy bee." (Wait, Franco's also a teacher? And a painter?)

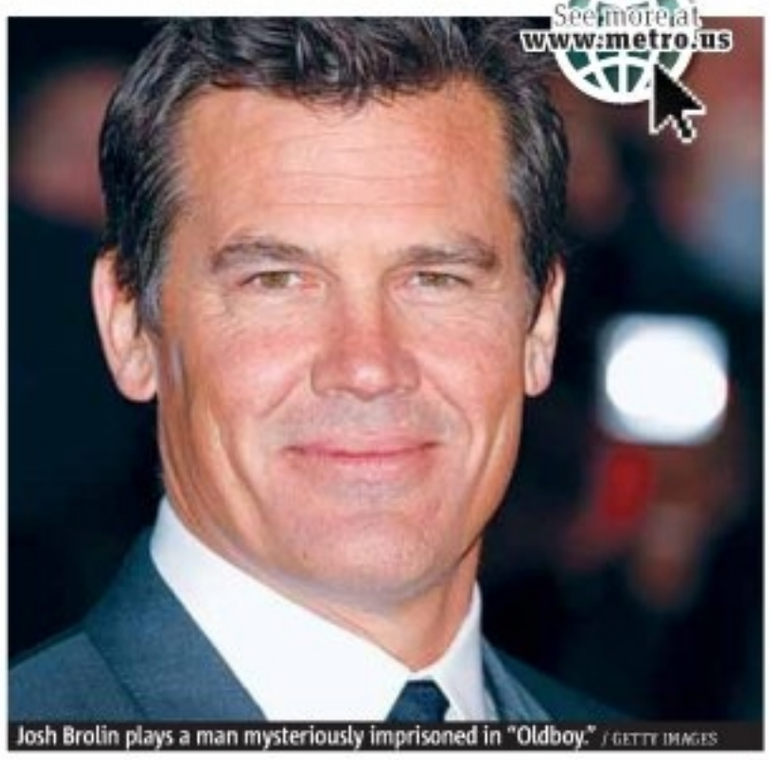
Binge eating

Food, as it turns out, has been factoring into Brolin's film roles so much that he's growing weary of discussing the extreme amounts of ingestion that go into presenting the act of eating on-screen.

"I ate, I'd say, probably 200 dumplings or something like that," he reveals. "But I've done that. In [the upcoming] 'Inherent Vice' I eat chocolate-covered frozen bananas.

"In 'W.' I ate sandwiches. I ate 18 sandwiches in one scene. I seem to be the food guy."

Interview. Josh Brolin gained weight, lost weight and ate a ton of dumplings while making "Oldboy."



Josh Brolin plays a man mysteriously imprisoned in "Oldboy." / GETTY IMAGES

The catering staff at the press junket for Spike Lee's update on "Oldboy" has laid out a spread almost entirely made up of different kinds of dumplings, and Josh Brolin does not think that's very funny. (The dish features prominently in the film as one of the only things Brolin's character is allowed to eat during his mysterious 20-year imprisonment.) "I think it's a dumb thing. It's a marketing ploy. Who wants dumplings for breakfast?" he scoffs.

"Oldboy" also asked a lot of Brolin's body: His character goes from a bloated alcoholic to a lean and mean tool of vengeance after his imprisonment.

"It was more about water retention, so I gained 28 pounds in 10 days, and then I lost 22 pounds in two and a half days," he recalls. "I'll never do it again because it killed my body. I was rehearsing the fight at the same time, which was not smart. So I pulled a lot of muscles and stuff that I'm still dealing with now."

That fight he's talking about is quite a doozy — an update on the original Korean film's single-take tracking shot of the film's hero taking out an army of goons with a carefully deployed hammer. Obviously for the remake they had to up the ante a bit.

"That was five weeks of prep, and it was difficult, to say the least," Brolin says. "The fight, I think, is at least three times longer than the original fight. I was having a really tough time in the beginning, and then I panicked. And then I started working out a lot — like two hours in the morning and two hours at night between 12-hour days. So I wasn't sleeping a lot, which I think lent to the movie, too, because I was more emotional, I was more on edge, I felt more exposed, vulnerable, whatever."

That level of self-abuse paid off. "We did it in seven takes, and the seventh take was the one," he remembers. "I walked away after that and had a little moment to myself, had some tears and was just happy that a 45-year-old dude was able to pull that off. It was a geriatric moment that I had."

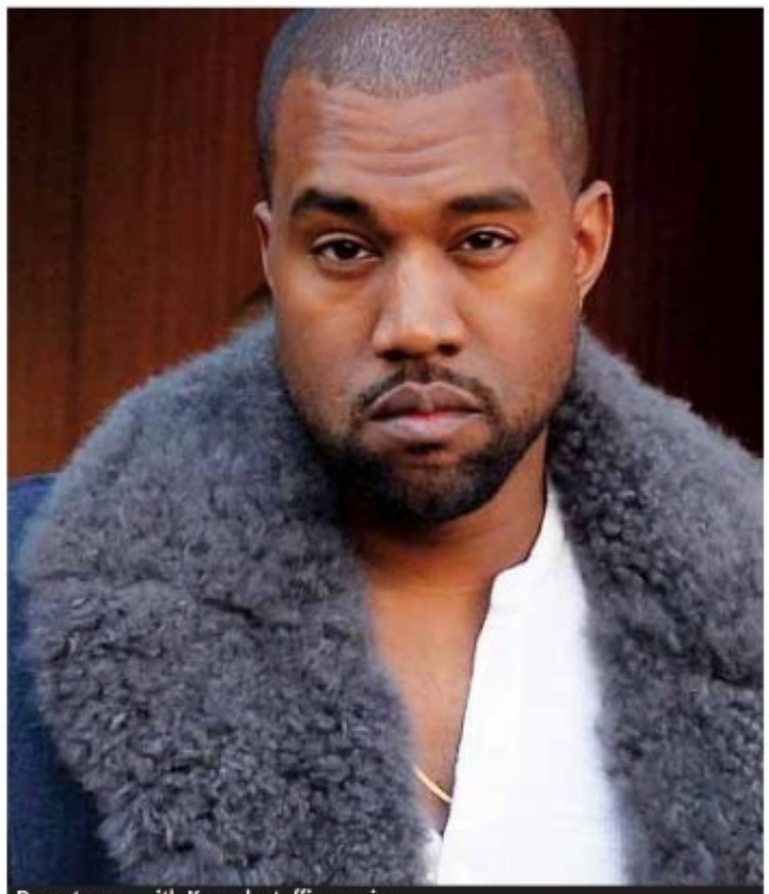
Fake celebrity discussions over Thanksgiving break

What do the rich and famous do over Thanksgiving break? They probably don't do what we do, which is hang out in our hometown bars, drinking cheap domestics with people from high school. But — what if they did? For this special Black Friday Word, Metro staffers imagined what kind of discussions the rich and famous have at their hometown dives.



Do not mess with Kanye's stuffing recipe.

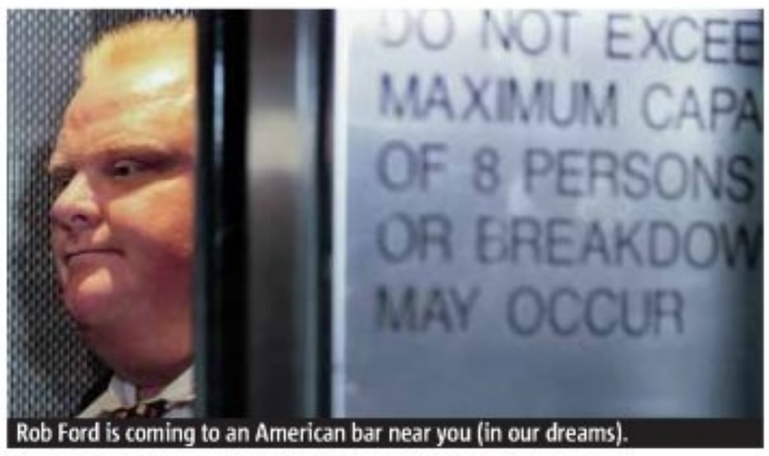
"Ima let you finish that Pabst, bro, but I have to tell you: I'm pretty sure my Thanksgiving stuffing recipe is the best recipe of all time. OF ALL TIME." Kanye West



Rob Ford is coming to an American bar near you (in our dreams).

"So you guys remember that weird older dude Doug we used to buy drugs from in high school? Oh man, I know! Us crazy kids, eh? But uh, yeah, anyone keep in touch with that guy? Asking for a friend."

Rob Ford [Editor's note: We know Canadian Thanksgiving is in October; please grant us this creative license that he hangs out in American townie bars when he's home on break this weekend.]

Surviving in the heat of battle

"The best runners always say you stake out your territory," says Regouby. "You use your arms and don't let anybody get too much in your way. Swing your arms and keep in your elbows to make sure you've got your own space that you need in order to run without tripping."

This sounds extreme, but seriously, do you want that food processor or not?

BLACK FRIDAY WITHOUT THE BULL

This is what it's like in Pamplona, Spain, in July — but it's eerily similar to the malls on Black Friday. / PABLO BLAZQUEZ DOMINGUEZ, GETTY IMAGES

Running to the mall. The shopping can get nasty, so we asked an unlikely expert for advice on how to handle the crowds.

If you look up Black Friday on YouTube, you're bound to find a lot of videos with terrible titles like "Black Friday Fights," "Black Friday Disasters" or "Black Friday 2012 Madness." But the horrifying stigma of this day doesn't seem to scare the thousands of cost-cutting Americans who voluntarily run with the big-box store crowd, fighting for killer deals on last year's food processor.

As with all other extreme sports, you need to prepare for Black Friday shopping. We went to the best: Mark Hellmann Regouby. Is Regouby an experienced Black Friday shopper? Not really. But he'll do you one better: He's the founder of the travel company Running of the Bulls, Inc., which puts tourists up close and personal with the animals at the annual event in Pamplona, Spain. Here's his advice for braving big crowds.

Getting ready

Before you go in

"We tell them ... watch the Bull Run first so they can see how it works and understand the flow of the people and the bulls and make their strategy from overviewed conditions," he says. This is where the aforementioned YouTube search for Black Friday comes in handy.

But the preparation doesn't stop here. If you were planning to hit the bottle to take the edge off of Black Friday shopping, you'd better think twice.

"The No. 1 rule is to arrive sober," Regouby says. "No. 2 is to get a good night's sleep. No. 3 is to have 360-degree awareness. Always try to be aware of who is in front, behind and beside you. Really get a sense of being in the place."

If you go down

There have only been 15 deaths since the beginning of the Bull Run in Pamplona in 1910, but broken wrists and bloodied chins are the norm. According to Regouby, there are more falls and injuries because of humans tripping over each other than because of the bulls. We can, with some certainty, say the same about Black Friday, except that the National Retail Federation has only reported one Black Friday trampling death: In 2008, a Wal-Mart employee was crushed in a stampede. So what do you do if you fall?

"The most important rule of all is if you go down, stay down. The bulls are actually talented at stepping over obstacles, and as long as you cover your head and stay down and don't move, they can plan to step over you."

We can only hope the same counts for the herds at Best Buy and Macy's. Actually, the people waiting in the cold to buy stuff at discount prices are probably NOT talented at stepping over obstacles, so just roll to safety!

When you succeed

Regouby says that a run like the one in Pamplona is for people who want to be in touch with their own mortality.

"I've done it four times and it's still pretty incredible," he says. "You arrive in this huge arena and the sun hits your face and the air is fresh again, and you can't believe you are alive." Sounds kind of like getting into the car with everything crossed off your gift list before anyone in your family is awake, doesn't it?

This is where the sales are, America!

National. Big-box retailers pack lots of people into those giant stores for a reason every Black Friday.

It's hard to say which comes first, an empty wallet or aching feet, but Black Friday shopping at chain and big-box stores can mean major savings.

Target's Black Friday sale starts Thursday at 8 p.m. and runs through closing on Saturday. Door-buster deals include a bonus $75 Target gift card with purchase of an iPad Mini Wi-Fi 16 GB ($299) or $100 gift card with an iPad Air Wi-Fi 16 GB ($479). Other deals: Beats by Dre Solo HD headphones ($119, usually $179.99), Nikon L320 camera ($99, usually $229.99) and Nintendo 3DS XL Game System ($149.99, usually $199.99). In the toy department, there's 50 percent off select items, including Monster High, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Lalaloopsy and Our Generation, when purchasing one at full price. (The two toys must be of the same brand; the discount will be applied to the lower-priced item.)

Among the many discounts at Macy's, select Rampage boots are discounted from $69 to $19. Friday, The GAP opens at 6 a.m. for 50 percent discounts on most stock; Saturday shoppers get 40 percent off their entire purchase. Forever 21's Black Friday sale means up to 50 percent off select items and yellow tag deals with gifts starting at $3. Juicy Couture customers receive a free mug with a purchase of $100 or more. Justice has 50 percent off most merchandise. At Fresh stores, get a free Fresh Life Rollerball with any $100 purchase. Spend $40 at Bath & Body Works and get a VIP Tote Bag ($100 value) for $20. And, Nordstrom Rack gives a $15 gift card when you spend more than $100. Yankee Candle's deals include 7-ounce jar candles ($5) for the first four hours on Friday.

At Ikea, Black Friday deals include Expedit shelving units at $19.99 (regularly $39.99) and 50 percent off at the Swedish Food Market when you spend $100 in the store. Saturday is the day for discounted Dinera dinnerware ($4.99, normally $9.99). Sunday, a Benno TV unit is $40 off ($39.99, regular $79.99). Soft toys are 50 percent off all weekend, and for each toy sold the IKEA Foundation donates $1 to Save the Children and UNICEF.

Local. Pick your hood and get shopping.

Fun 'n' games

Be the king for a day

Black Friday doesn't have to be all schlepp. Hang out at Kings — located downtown, at Market Street, and at Legacy Place — where they're offering a Black Friday deal that includes a $50 rewards card, good for everything except alcohol, when you buy a $100 gift card.

Copley Place opens at 8 a.m. for deals, including The Art of Shaving's $25 off any purchase of $125 or more; John Varvatos's 30 to 40 percent off select merchandise; Elie Tahari's $25 off entire purchase including sale stock; or go for gold with Orogold, a luxury skincare brand that's infused with 24-karat gold and normally quite pricey ($128-$1,500). From Black Friday through Dec. 1, however, purchase one product and receive a second product of equal or lesser value free, each beautifully packaged. That's a deal (www.simon.com).

Ten Thousand Villages' Black Friday "Savings that Sparkle" sale gives 50 percent off gorgeous handmade jewelry and gloves after buying one full-priced item (252 Washington St., 617-372-8743, www.tenthousandvillages.com).

Legacy Place kicks off around 6 a.m. with hundreds of early-bird discounts. White House Black Market's Black Friday sale takes 30 percent off your entire purchase until 9 a.m. and then discounts 25 percent through Sunday. Spend $200 at Carhartt and get $50 back. Stellabella has 20 percent off everything except for Lego and Playmobil. (www.stellabellatoys.com).

On the left bank, Harvard Square's Forty Winks has 15 percent off the entire store including sale items (56 JFK St., 617-492-9100). Black Ink will donate 10 percent of Friday's sales to the United Nations World Food Programme. (5 Brattle St., 617-497-1221). The trickily named Schoenhof's Foreign Books has 10 percent off domestic titles and 20 percent off international merchandise (76A Mount Auburn St., 617-547-8855).

At all Toys "R" Us stores, (there are 55 in Massachusetts) storewide clearance will be discounted up to 80 percent through Nov. 30. The deals come in waves with different sets of doorbusters (a nod to the fact that they're aware that people actually bust down doors for Black Friday).

How to build the best Black Friday sandwich

See more at www.metro.us

Good grub. If you're going to shop all day, you'll need the right foods to sustain you.

Every Black Friday, people hit their refrigerators before they hit the stores. But what makes or breaks a sandwich made of leftovers?

Scott Ayotte of Cardullo's in Cambridge says you definitely need stuffing: "Some might skip the stuffing on a Thanksgiving-style sandwich, but I think that's what makes our 'Pilgrim' sandwich stand out on our menu."

He adds: "We make a fresh in-house stuffing that actually uses French baguettes. We like the bread a little hard so it can really soak up the stock and give it that extra flavor."

But getting the right proportions for this sammy is key.

"A good sandwich in general has to be a balance of ingredients," says Boston's All Star Sandwich Bar co-owner and chef, John Diamantopoulos. "If you get a sandwich that has more stuffing than actual bread, it's just going to be too much. A little bit of relish, a little bit of gravy, you know, just enough of everything to give it that cohesive flavor."

Where to go

Be thankful for leftovers! / FUSE

Out of leftovers?

If your host didn't supply you with leftovers, shops all over the city (including All Star and Cardullo's) serve up their own Thanksgiving leftovers sandwiches. Here's a few more:

1 The Foundry, 255 Elm St., Somerville, The Turkey Pilgrim Burger, seasonal; $13
Ground turkey topped with Vermont cheddar cheese, mashed winter squash and a cranberry relish spread on a brioche roll. Yum!

2 Pemberton Farms, 2225 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, The Mayflower, year-round; $8.95
Freshly sliced roasted turkey breast with sage stuffing, cranberry relish, lettuce and mayo on sourdough bread. What's not to like?

3 Fat Cat, 24 Chestnut St., Quincy, Fat Turkey Sandwich, year-round; $8
Fried turkey breast, cranberry mango chutney, cornbread stuffing, chipotle mayo and apple-smoked bacon on a ciabatta roll.

Reclaiming the baggage claim

Luggage. Elizabeth Jeffer's online destination helps us travel in style.

In spite of all the runways, the airport has never been much of a fashion show — especially during the frenetic holiday travel period. But Elizabeth Jeffer, founder of online travel and accessories boutique Roztayger, is blending style and practicality with her selection of bags and accessories. Jeffer has searched the world for designers who emphasize craftsmanship, functionality and modern, streamlined style.

Jeffer's top picks

1 J. Panther Luggage Co. The Ruc Tote "This is a personal favorite of mine for traveling overseas. It's a unisex bag that is rugged enough to hold all your carry-on items such as files, laptop, iPad, cords, a few magazines and some toiletries. The added bonus is that you can carry it three ways — a great way to avoid body pain from overpacking." $590

2 Porter Tanker tote "The Japanese brand makes some of the highest quality bags around. The Tanker tote is an easy over-the-shoulder bag with so many pockets both inside and out. You pay a bit more for Porter bags, but you get it back in longevity and quality of design and usefulness." $296

3 Clare Vivier wallet "Having a large, colorful wallet that can contain your ticket and passport is key when traveling. I get really nervous when I have to rummage, so I always try to carry a brightly colored or metallic wallet that I can spot easily or use later as an evening clutch." $105

4 Frrry "Frrry has these fantastic collapsible bags: Collapse 2 and Collapse 3. You can actually flatten them to maybe 2 inches and put them in your suitcase. It's a good one to pack if you want to come home with more stuff, or go for a short trip within your trip." $342-$472

5 Bellroy travel wallet "This fits the bill for men. It accommodates all travel documents and also has a tiny pen that slips into the wallet fold for convenience." $119

THEATER

'Mies Julie'

Saturday through Dec. 8
Paramount Center,
559 Washington St., Boston
$25-$89, 617-824-8400
www.artsemerson.org
South African playwright Yael Farber wrote and directed this adaptation of the 1888 Swedish play "Miss Julie" by August Stringberg, a tale of class and sexual politics involving a bored aristocratic daughter who begins cavorting with the servants. Farber swaps the original setting for post-apartheid South Africa, adding a racial dimension that complicates the plot's tensions even more.

MUSIC

Arturo Sandoval

Friday and Saturday
Sculler's, 400 Soldiers Field Rd., Boston, $45-$85, 617-562-4111
www.scullersjazz.com
Cuban musician Arturo Sandoval is one of the living masters of jazz trumpet. Though his musical education began in classical, he was inspired by bebop architect Dizzy Gillespie, under whom he'd study later, to switch to jazz. In turn, he'd help fuel Gillespie's interest in Afro-Cuban music.

Thalia Zedek Band

Sunday, 9 p.m.
Great Scott, 1222 Comm. Ave., Allston, $8, 800-745-3000
www.ticketmaster.com
Singer and guitarist Thalia Zedek has been kicking around the alt-rock world since the late '70s. Her current solo project has the sound of an artist well worn into the boots of her identity. Her bluesy, brooding style, marked by her raspy, exhausted-sounding contralto croon, has an icy beauty.

Friday through Sunday
Cambridge College, 1000 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, Free, culturalsurvival@cs.org, bazaar.cs.org
This arts and crafts expo features handmade goods by a wide variety of indigenous artists and craftspeople, giving you the chance to buy direct from the creators. Aside from vendors, the Bazaar also features music and dance performances. If you miss this one, more will take place through the next month around Boston — check the website for full details.

COMEDY

Ari Shaffir

Friday and Saturday
Laugh Boston,
425 Summer St., Boston
$20-$25, 617-725-2844
www.laughboston.com
Ari Shaffir is best known for his prank video series "The Amazing Racist," in which he pretends to be a rabid racist toward different ethnic groups, represented by unsuspecting real people. What kills you isn't his character's ugly slurs or bigoted notions, but totally shameless, matter-of-fact demeanor, which makes the racism even more absurd and grotesque.

This comedy centers on Becky, a middle-aged woman with a boring job and a boring marriage. When she meets a wealthy man who falls for her under the mistaken belief that she is a widow, she decides to roll with it, and ends up with more than she bargained for — isn't that always the way?

ART

Karl Stevens: 'Four Portraits'

Through Dec. 21
Carroll and Sons,
450 Harrison Ave., Boston
Free, 617-482-2477
www.carrollandsons.net
Local graphic artist Karl Stevens is best known for his long-running autobiographical comic strip in the now-defunct Boston Phoenix, "Failure." This exhibition features four real life character studies, with paintings as well as sketches and comic strips, providing a multifaceted portrait of each person. Stevens' apparent realism is deceptive — his subtle exaggerations communicate a reality that's already enough of a cartoon for those who know where to look.

Horoscope

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Mingle with your peers and find out where you stand. Share your thoughts, but keep your personal preferences a secret.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20.
Keep your emotions in check and your mind on what needs to be done. You will have chances to meet potential partners if you mingle with people who share your concerns.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18.
A lack of communication isn't always a bad thing. Take time to think about the way you feel and what you want to convey before you make a move that may limit future discussions.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
Lend a helping hand, and you will end up receiving as much in return. A personal partnership will undergo emotional stress if you cannot agree on a financial matter.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
Set up investments that will give you a tax break. An emotional issue due to an unpredictable incident is likely to influence your living arrangements and your love life.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Take care of personal business and discuss your plans with anyone who will be affected by the decisions you make. Expand your interests and your future prospects.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Do your best to help others, but don't meddle or you will end up in an awkward position. A physical activity will help you feel rejuvenated and ready to take on new interests.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Look at the way others live and the interests and differences between yourself and those in your community. Sharing your philosophy will encourage new friendships.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
Listen to any complaints being made at home and show compassion for anyone going through a tough time. Your attentiveness will help change the way someone thinks of you.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
Personal investing and moneymaking ideas will lead to victory. Suggestions you make will put you in the driver's seat at meetings.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Sensitive issues at home or at work will leave you questioning your next move. Don't procrastinate when you should be dealing with issues swiftly. Don't let emotions intervene.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
A secret is likely to be divulged. Protect your reputation, assets and future prospects. Personal changes must be given great thought. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Don't judge JFK's political leanings by just a few actions

Re: 'JFK would be a Republican' (Metro, Nov. 26) Letter writer Tom Ward cleverly cherry-picks the career of JFK and concludes that he would today be a Republican. The fact is, almost any long-term political career could be parsed or twisted into the support of one party or the other. Ronald Reagan could easily be called a Democrat based on decisions he made at various times during his career, for example.

Some clarification is in order regarding the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This Act was proposed by JFK, and then LBJ, and enjoyed widespread bipartisan support. While supported and sponsored in the legislature by both parties, it was obstructed, mainly by Democrats, in the South. It was widely rejected by Southern Democrats and Republicans alike. In the House, 93 percent of Southern Democrats and 100 percent of Southern Republicans opposed it. In the Senate, 95 percent of Southern Democrats and 100 percent of Southern Republicans opposed it.

Over all, the bill passed with large majorities with the final tally differing by the relative size of their Southern blocs: In both the House and Senate, just over 60 percent of Democrats and 80 percent of Republicans supported it.

Thus, the bill passed with heavy majorities everywhere but in the South. Somehow, after this great joining-up of the party of Lincoln and the party of Jefferson, the two parties diverged on policies that impact minorities. Today minorities in substantial numbers find the Democrats to be more supportive of issues important to them than the Republicans. Clearly, it didn't have to be this way.

Pats enter into a soft stretch in the schedule

NFL. The Patriots owned the Texans last season, and now Houston has major issues of its own.

Are the Patriots "for real" yet?

Perhaps it took a 24-point comeback win over the top-seeded Broncos to turn some naysayers into believers.

The Pats (8-3) are currently the No. 2 seed in the AFC, behind those same Broncos (9-2). But they hold the all-important tiebreaker against them should the two teams finish with the same record at the end of the season.

The Broncos don't have the hardest remaining schedule, but they do travel to Kansas City this weekend in a divisional game that will surely be the toughest contest left on their schedule.

Meanwhile, the Pats travel to Houston to play a Texans (2-9) team that has gone from a Super Bowl contender to a train wreck, having lost nine straight games.

Here are three things to look for in Houston on Sunday (1 p.m., CBS):

1 Get "Rid" of him?

Perhaps the biggest stain on the Patriots' win over the Broncos was the fact that Stevan Ridley once again put the ball on the ground. It's the third straight week Ridley has lost a fumble, and they are proving costly. His fumble against the Broncos was returned for a touchdown and immediately put the Pats in a hole. It's this simple: Ridley cannot and will not be trusted with the ball right now. With Shane Vereen, Brandon Bolden, and LeGarrette Blount (who also fumbled vs. Broncos) available, Ridley may have seen his last important snap for a while. The Pats won without him vs. Denver, and they can certainly beat the Texans without No. 22.

2 A Texans trap?

When the schedule came out, this looked like this was going to be a huge game. Now? Not so much. But that doesn't mean the Patriots can take the Texans lightly. Six of Houston's nine losses, including its last five, have been by seven points or less. The Texans still rank first overall in passing defense, allowing just 171.8 yards per game through the air. On the flip side, Case Keenum has taken over for Matt Schaub at quarterback, and while he's certainly not perfect, he does seem to have a good thing going with wide receiver Andre Johnson.

3 Pats taking form

While most teams seem to be getting worse as the season goes, the Pats seem to be getting better. In the secondary, rookies Logan Ryan and Duron Harmon have stepped up when needed. The same goes for linebacker Dane Fletcher, who replaced an ineffective Dont'a Hightower in the second half against the Broncos. Offensively, the Pats have never looked stronger this season, with a full arsenal of weapons at Tom Brady's disposal.

Quoted

"Ball security is the most important factor for our offense. ... We have to be part of the solution. We have to work with him."

Edelman finding his niche

NFL. The unheralded Patriots wide receiver stole the show in last Sunday's matchup with the Broncos.

For Tom Brady and the Patriots offense there's been a lot of change at the wide receiver position over the past few years, with only one real constant — Julian Edelman.

In his fifth season out of Kent State, where he played quarterback, Edelman is the longest tenured player Brady is throwing the ball to. The chemistry and trust Brady and Edelman have developed is something which may go unnoticed and is sometimes under-appreciated, particularly with having bigger names catching passes like Rob Gronkowski and Danny Amendola.

Julian Edelman has caught 61 passes so far in 2013. / GETTY IMAGES

"He's been so dependable and consistent all year for our team," Brady said. "He's been the one veteran player on our offense that's been in there and has been around. He always does a great job. He's tough, smart, disciplined. It's fun to see him do well because he deserves it."

This season has been a breakout year for the 27-year-old, who has already caught a career-high 61 passes for 610 yards in 2013 — eclipsing his previous highs set in his rookie season when he hauled in 37 passes for 359 yards. His four touchdowns are also a career-high.

Edelman had his best game of the season last Sunday night in the Patriots' thrilling come-from-behind win over the Broncos where he caught nine passes on 11 targets for 110 yards and two touchdowns, ultimately stealing the show from Wes Welker in his return, as well as from Amendola, who was brought to New England to replace Welker.

"My number was called a few times, and I was able to have a couple opportunities and I just try to take advantage of them," said Edelman following the game. "A couple games back it was [Kenbrell Thompkins], [Aaron Dobson], Danny [Amendola.] That's our job — our job is to be able to get open and catch the football, and I was able to do that a few times."

Not only is Edelman a dependable receiver, but he's turned into the best Patriots punt returner since Troy Brown. The shifty, 5-foot-10, 195-pound Edelman always seems to make something happen when, seemingly, there is nothing there and rarely makes a poor decision on whether to call for a fair catch or let the ball bounce.

There was a chance Edelman wouldn't be with New England this season as he was a free agent following last season and was rumored to be interested in signing with the 49ers and Giants, but in the end he returned to the Patriots, settling on a one-year contract loaded with incentives.

Jumpin' Julian

Julian Edelman is enjoying his top year as a pro after playing quarterback at Kent State.

- Edelman passed for 4997 yards with 30 touchdowns and 31 interceptions in three years at Kent State.
- He rushed for a whopping 1,551 yards at QB in his senior season with the Golden Flashes.
